Poet relays his gang experiences in lecture

Victory is the greatest teacher you have in your life and it will lead you.

Louis Rodriguez, an award winning poet and author of the book "Always Running: A Memoir of La Vida Loca, Gang Days In Los Angeles," spoke these words Thursday evening as part of Latino Awareness Week.

"There are a lot of young people out there who need help, and there's not enough people who are willing to help them," Rodriguez said. He mentioned there are two simple reasons that he finally left gang life and its violence alive: pure luck, and the fact people saw something in him and who wouldn't let him go.

Rodriguez said: "It is important for us to give kids the opportunities to get involved with their schools and communities. If we can get them engaged in activities that challenge their intellect and creativity, then we can help them to see their purpose and to begin to see their futures."

Eastern has no female, minority doctors: Survey

By BRIAN HUCHEL
Campus editor

Eastern is the only university out of seven state schools without a female doctor or a gynecologist.

According to a survey released by the Women's Studies Council committee, Eastern is also one of only two universities surveyed not having a minority doctor on its staff. These findings were released at Thursday's Women's Studies Council meeting.

Also, Eastern ranked last among the schools surveyed for allocating the least amount of student fees to its Health Service. Eastern students pay about $49.20 per school year to fund the center.

Health Services of Eastern, Northern Illinois, Illinois State, Sangamon State, Southern Illinois at Carbondale, Southern Illinois at Edwardsville, Western Illinois and the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign were surveyed for the council's study.

English professor Sharon Bartling, coordinator of the Women's Studies Council, said Eastern should have a female gynecologist on its Health Service staff.

"It is frustrating because we don't want to raise the student fees," Bartling said. "We understand the cost. However, other schools have (females and minorities on staff) and it is time for Eastern to have one also."

As part of its findings, the council asked Vice President for Student Affairs Lou Hencken to address the council's Health Service concerns.

"We try to offer the best service to students at the lowest possible cost,"

Order denied; Stu's to serve suspension

By TRAVIS SPENCER
City editor

A local attorney representing Stu's Surfside was denied a request Thursday for a temporary restraining order that would stop the city from closing the bar for 30 days.

Stu's, 1405 Fourth St., will begin serving a 30-day suspension today and will not re-open until May 9 during Eastern's finals week. The 30-day closing is the longest period of time in which a bar has been closed for six years.

S. John Muller, attorney for Stu's, was denied the temporary restraining order by Judge H. Dean Andrews.

Andrews said Muller's request was denied because an appeal made to the Illinois Liquor Commission had not been exhausted to the fullest. He also said Muller did not supply significant evidence that the business would suffer "harm" if it would be suspended.

Muller filed an appeal with the Illinois Liquor Commission Monday after Cougill found Stu's guilty of its third liquor violation within a year. The appeal opposes Cougill's decision to suspend the bar's liquor license.

Muller argued that a temporary restraining order was needed to prevent the establishment from losing 30 days of business without cause because May 11 is the earliest the commission can hold an appeal hearing.

Stu's would suffer "harm" if the bar is suspended for 30 days because one-twelfth of Stu's yearly income would be lost, Muller said.

Muller said the reason the city wants Stu's to serve the suspension now instead of waiting until the commission makes a decision is because it "wants him (Keating) to suffer more."

Muller said if the suspension was delayed until the commission makes a final decision, it wouldn't hurt Charleston.

"There wouldn't be any skin off their back ... unless they have malice against Stu's," Muller said.

Muller said a lawsuit to compensate for the loss of 30 days business may be filed.

Muller argued that the bar needs to stay open because it employs about 29 college students and helps the students financially to pay for school.

Carpenter faces uphill race, former candidates says

By CHRIS SEPER
Editor in chief

One day in 1980, journalism Professor Peter Voelz found himself driving into Cumberland County - hurriedly studying the nuances of chicken inspecting.

"One hundred farmers in Cumberland were concerned about the issue," explained Voelz, who ran against Republican Dan Crane in the 1980 U.S. Representative race.

Voelz's trip to Cumberland County may be a glimpse of what English professor David Carpenter is about to go through. Carpenter is preparing for his first political campaign against State Rep. Mike Weaver, R-Ashmore, in the 106th District.

Voelz and retired political science Professor Joe Connelly have both been beyond the issues-and-debate side of campaigning. Combined, the two have already gone through three races.

Connelly, who was part of the political science department from 1958 to 1993, won a seat in the Illinois House of Representatives in 1964 and lost in a bid for the state Senate in 1966. Voelz's lone trip into political campaigning was his Democratic nomination and subsequent loss in the U.S. Representative's race.

Connelly ran on the Democratic ticket in both of his races. Unlike Voelz, who was a newcomer to politics, Connelly had been active in the Democratic Party and had held several local offices before moving to the state level.

"It's a lot of traveling," said Voelz, who has been teaching journalism since 1978. "You've got to shake hands, go to fish

Krackers Inc., spoke on the bar’s behalf, saying he believes Stu’s helps students work their way through college.

However, City Attorney Brian Bower said the bar’s employment of students is irrelevant.

Bower argued that Muller waited too long to take action because Muller waited 17 days to appeal the suspension. Muller legally had 21 days to appeal the decision.

Bower also said law requires 72-hours notice between the time a request for a temporary restraining order is made and the time of the hearing. However, a formal request was not presented within 72 hours of fires and try to sound genuinely interested in every person’s opinion.”

Connelly described campaigning as a “tough” experience.

“It was day after day after day knocking on doors and going on to meetings talking to people,” he said. “It’s tough. People who criticize politicians should see what it’s like.”

Carpenter’s experiences will probably be more similar to those of Connelly’s, since Connelly competed in state races and Voelz was running in a larger national district.

“You have to have a lot of personal contact,” Connelly said about competing on the that offers guidance to kids,” he said, “and one that believes in the idea that every child has value, deserves to be nurtured and can succeed.”

Rodriguez added that community residents and the school systems must work together to accomplish this goal.

“If we want to get anything done, we have to do it ourselves,” Rodriguez said. Rodriguez added that nationwide schools have the respon-salaries. (Eastern doctors) are only paid between $45,000 and $60,000.”

Compared to facilities such as Carle Clinic and Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center, Hencken said doctors there make about $130,000.

At Thursday’s meeting, council members offered suggestions to hire a female doctor or gynecologist. Others suggested bringing a physician from Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center or Carle Clinic to work part-time at Eastern.

Thursday’s hearing, Bower said.

“He sat on his hands and now it’s the 11th hour,” Bower said. He said Muller is seeking extraordinary relief from the suspension.

But Muller delaying the suspension wouldn’t hurt Charleston.

“I don’t think the world will come apart in Charleston if Stu’s Surfside stays open,” Muller said.

Stu’s received the 30-day suspension after it was found guilty of serving an underage police informant during a Feb. 19 compliance check.

At its March 17 hearing, Muller argued the city uses entrapment tactics in its alcohol compliance checks because the police informant appeared to be older than 21.

During his campaign, Voelz lost about 20 pounds, worked 18 hours a day and took a leave of absence from the university. Connelly continued to teach at Eastern, but worked through the night trying to campaign.

Voelz’s said friends and family who came out and helped were the only ones who “saved my psyche.”

Voelz and Connelly were split on Carpenter’s chances to win in November. Voelz said it may be difficult for Carpenter to beat Weaver – an established five-term incumbent who has been in the legislature for 10 years – if he can’t find an issue the voters can hammer him with.

state level. “You have some money for newspaper ads but no money for TV ads.”

Connelly said a lack of money is also a large problem for state candidates.

“That’s a tremendous headache,” he said. “(Carpenter) doesn’t know people in Edgar and Clark County. It’s tough to ask people for money, and it’s tough to make money.”

Connelly said Carpenter will have to take everything people say “with a grain of salt.” From now on, people he meets will try to enforce the positive or negative things.

The rigors of campaigning took their toll on both men – and the two agreed the same is in store for Carpenter.

sibility to provide a positive atmosphere for the development of their students, and community residents have the responsibility of getting involved.

“It’s about more than just calling the police,” Rodriguez said. “It’s a matter of knowing how to respect people. If you want anything, you have to organize to get it. You have to make your own history, you can’t wait for someone to hand it to you.”

Bar alternative questioned

By ADAM McHUGH
Administration editor

The proposed construction of an on-campus coffee house has received mixed reactions from several Faculty Senate members who are questioning student interest in such a business.

Earlier this week, Vice President for Business Affairs Charles Colbert said a campus coffeehouse is planned for late spring and could be completed by late summer. The 4,000 to 5,000 square-foot coffee house would attempt to offer students an alternative to Charleston bars.

Colbert said the coffee house should be built on the Tundra, the large field located behind Tarble Arts Center.

"In principle, I think it's a good idea, but some of us are concerned about what kind of student reception it will get," senate member Gary Aylesworth said.

"We were also concerned with what kind of feasibility study was done for this project," Aylesworth added.

At Tuesday's senate meeting, several senate members addressed the coffee house issue with Eastern President David Jorns, who said he thinks the establishment can be "a place where students can gather and study, or just quietly chat."

Jorns said the administration is concerned about creating things for students to do.

Senate member John Allison said he remains "worried about what degree of student participation there will be in the business."

"My original concerns of funding and location were addressed pretty well by Jorns, but I think there should still be a high level of student involvement in the project," Allison said. "Any alternative to the bars is a good thing, but there needs to

Coffeehouse success hinges on bar age vote

By ADAM McHUGH
Administration editor

Several members of Student Government said Thursday the success of a proposed on-campus coffeehouse will depend greatly on whether the Charleston City Council decides to raise the bar-entry age to 21 on Monday.

Student Senate member Amy Levine said while she believes the coffeehouse is a well-conceived idea, she thinks it will be more successful if the bar-entry age is raised to 21.

"A lot of things are depending on Monday night's decision on the bar-entry age," Levine said. "If the entry age is raised to 21, the coffeehouse will probably experience great success."

On Monday, Vice President for Business Affairs Charles Colbert said construction will begin on a 4,000 to 5,000 square-foot coffeehouse by late spring and will be completed by late this summer.

Colbert said the planned site for the coffeehouse is the vacant lot known as the Tundra behind Tarble Arts Center. The business, although it will be on university property, will be privately owned.

Eastern's Faculty Senate voiced concern about the coffeehouse at Tuesday's meeting when several members said they believed a lack of student participation in the project may keep it from being a success.

Student Body President Luke Neumann disagreed, saying the coffeehouse will serve as an excellent bar alternative if the entry age is raised to 21.

"If the bar-entry age is raised, there will be a surplus of individuals who will need an alternative," Neumann said.

For the last few months, members of Student Government have been working to create bar alternatives.

Senate Speaker Bobby Smith said, "We've been pushing hard to put something like this together, and I'm glad (Eastern President David) Jorns and Colbert have been working with us."

Smith said if the "atmosphere" of the establishment is conducive to attracting students, it will be a success.

"I think the coffeehouse is a positive step in the future of Eastern, as I believe the entry age will be changed Monday," Smith said.

be student participation."

Although the coffeehouse will be on university property, it will be privately owned and operated. Colbert said the university would like the owner to keep the business open until 1 or 2 a.m. and would serve coffee and desserts.

Faculty Senate Chairman Bill Addison said the senate had some "misconceptions" of what type of business was planned by the university.

"I thought Jorns was originally saying there would be some type of entertainment at the coffeehouse, but I guess it sounds more like a diner," Addison said.

Colbert said the university will try to avoid letting an owner who will sell alcohol into the contract.

Clarification

A page six article in Thursday's edition of The Daily Eastern News incorrectly listed the qualifications for the Distinguished Faculty Award.

To be eligible for the award, faculty members must be in their fourth year of full-time employment at Eastern. They must also excel in the areas of teaching, research or creative activity, and service, and must have a distinguished record in these areas to be considered for the award.

University sends mixed messages about diversity

The university seems to be sending mixed messages on the subject of diversity. Does it support the idea of diversity or doesn't it?

In the past month and a half, much has been made of the university's plans to expand Greek Court by six houses — a move that will allow members of Eastern's fraternities and sororities to become even more of a separate community than they already are.

Editorial

And now plans are in the works to provide the University Honors Program with its own separate community as well.

Supporters of the plan say the move would not be a matter of segregation, but would merely provide an additional housing option — a quiet lifestyle environment conducive to academic excellence.

The idea of a quiet lifestyle residence hall is not a new one. They are commonplace at many colleges and universities around the state, such as Bradley University.

But the difference in this case is the designation of McKinney Hall as an honors residence hall rather than a quiet lifestyle hall.

It's a subtle difference, but one that conjures up images of separatism and self-segregation.

What makes this particular brand of separatism hard to swallow is the fact that it is sponsored by the same university that spends thousands of dollars each year to bring cultural diversity speakers and events to campus and makes a great show of celebrating diversity.

Eastern has only 266 honors students, and members of fraternities and sororities are estimated to make up no more than 20 percent of Eastern's total student population.

If these two groups are allowed to segregate themselves away from the rest of the campus, what groups will be next to demand their own university-financed housing?

Will smokers be the next to demand their own residence hall? What about Black Student Union members? Or gay and bisexual students? Where will the line be drawn?

If the university wants to sponsor this brand of segregation, that's fine. But it shouldn't come looking for any of us during its next cultural diversity celebration. The hypocrisy will be too much for some.

Students should stop backing lame causes

Harvey Pettry has no shame.

In an attempt to become part of a kind-hearted solution, Pettry has personified one of the largest problems on campus.

The problem is this: during the past year, Eastern students have thrown passionate amounts of attention and effort behind lame causes.

Last semester's "cool cause" was Greg Jackson.

Students were petitioning for Jackson's release from police custody.

Greg, an Eastern student, is one of the men — along with Marcus Gray and Antwon Tyler — who shot a hole in the hood of his mother's car. Attempting to dodge the wrath of dear ol' mom, the three men found a similar car and waited for the owner.

When Chicago-area nurse Sheila Doyle left work in that car, the men followed.

Sheila was tailed nearly 13 miles to her home where she was fatally shot and stuffed into the trunk of her car.

The hood was never taken.

And Eastern students wanted to set him free? Great idea. Why don't we also endorse ethnic cleansing, the re-election of Richard Nixon and additional student fee money for University Board.

This semester's "cool cause" featured an unprecedented outcry from the student body.

Were the students protesting another hike in the cost of college education? Were the students questioning the widening gap between them and the university's administration? Were the students angered by the realignment of Major League Baseball?

No.

Eastern students just wanted to drink.

The bar-entry age became a topic which continues to capture the hearts, minds and livers of every under-21 student on campus. Never, in the scope of higher education, have so many given so much for so little.

Rest assured, when the rights of free-flowing booze are challenged, this campus moves to action.

And speaking of booze, enter Greg McCoy and Harvey Pettry.

Greg is the 20-year-old student who suffered burns

J.A. Winders

"We have a problem of supporting anyone or anything without thinking twice about our reasoning."

on more than 63 percent of his body when he passed out in a pit of lime following an evening of drinking with fraternity members.

The event is tragic — a fate which should not be wished upon anyone. But why has Greg evolved into some kind of Eastern saint?

Greg was drunk, decided to trespass onto privately-owned property and then passed out in a mound of chemicals that burn away human flesh.

The Residence Hall Association's Harvey Pettry is now raising money to send balloons and candy to Greg. Certainly a nice gesture.

But we have been told this was not a hazing-related incident. We have also been told Nixon was not a crook and Hitler was happy with just Czechoslovakia.

But if this is truly not hazing, then Greg brought this sad mess upon himself.

Doesn't Harvey understand the concept? Sending flowers is fine. Sending cards is fine. But Harvey has spent the past week whining about how little campus-wide support his card/flower drive has received.

Perhaps some students have difficulty supporting someone who brought turmoil to his life by getting blitzed out of his skull.

Greg had a choice to make. He made it and is now forced to confront the consequences square in the face.

And while we should certainly wish him the best of luck in doing so, Pettry's motives and well-wishes for Greg seem a bit contrived.

If Pettry wants to send gifts, he has every right. But his public showcase is sickening, and his "look how much I care" attitude is shameful.

Just because the event is tragic doesn't mean people have to fall in line.

We have a problem of supporting anyone or anything without thinking twice about our reasoning.

Don't let campus leaders organize your thoughts for you. Perhaps you won't want to flow with the crowd once you examine the circumstances surrounding the event.

America needs to consider stricter gun control laws

Japan has, within the last two weeks, become awash with horror stories about the United States, and it's really no wonder.

Foreign visitors here keep getting shot dead. Most recently, two Japanese students were gunned down during a carjacking in California.

Just about everybody knows how it happened.

Some thugs wanted the car and, in a nation where handguns can be cheaper than sneakers and as easy to get, they had the firepower to take it.

What does that say about the present state of America?

It appears that by rejecting rational gun controls, this nation tacitly accepts ever-escalating murder rates.

Guest viewpoint

Gun control saves lives, and Japan, ironically, proves it.

In that country, where gun controls are strict, there were 60 handgun-related murders in 1992.

In the United States, where handgun controls are almost non-existent, there were 13,220.

Gun advocates call the comparison unfair, citing cultural differences. But what about Canada or Australia?

In those nations, like ours in heritage but with tight gun laws, handgun murders in 1992 were 128 and 13.

We don't even control firearms today as closely as cars. We don't demand that they be registered or insured. We don't demand that their owners be tested or licensed.

That's indefensible. A recent USA Today/CNN/Gallup poll found three out of four people support licensing gun owners as we do motorists. Even more favor new federal laws to let law enforcement agencies track gun sales.

Gun registration has been popular for years. These ideas make profoundly good sense.

The caskets going to Japan represent a grisly international surplus. We take in more live visitors than we send back.

Our own terrible losses aside, that should make you shout with shame.

Raffle to benefit McCoy

By ABBY KRAKOW
Staff writer

Two Eastern greek organizations will hold a dance Saturday night to benefit Eastern student Greg McCoy and local senior citizens.

Kappa Delta Rho fraternity and Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority will be presenting "The Spring Swing" from 8 to 11 p.m. Saturday at the Charleston High School Gym. Ticket sales for the dance will be donated to the Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) of Mattoon-Charleston.

Jeff Armsworth, philanthropy chairman of Kappa Delta Rho, said the fraternity decided to hold the event to give a better image to the community.

"The community has done so much for Eastern, and we believe Eastern should do something for the community," Armsworth said.

The Mattoon/Charleston senior citizens program will be a recipient of the dance proceeds because a "major part of the community as well as the surrounding community are senior citizens," Armsworth said.

Saturday's dance will feature the Don Smith Orchestra, which will play tunes from the Big Band Era. Armsworth said senior citizens enjoy this type of music as well as people of all ages.

"Some believe it is hard to relate to them since we're college students and they are senior citizens," Armsworth said.

In addition to the dance, a

"50/50" raffle will be held to benefit McCoy. McCoy is recovering at Springfield's Memorial Medical Center from chemical burns he suffered in early March after he spent a night unconscious in a Charleston lime pit.

Half the money collected from the raffle will help pay for McCoy's hospital bills and the other half to the winner. Raffle tickets will cost $1 apiece.

"If people have a chance to win something, as well as help Greg (McCoy), more people will be more willing to donate. A lot of people want to help him," Armsworth said.

Tickets for the dance will be $3 for students with an ID and $5 for the general public and can be purchased at the door.

LGBAU promoting human rights bill

By TRACEE BAUM

Eastern's Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Allies Union is currently campaigning to have a sexual orientation amendment implemented into the Human Rights Bill of the Illinois Constitution.

The Illinois Federation for Human Rights held a demonstration in Springfield Wednesday afternoon to protest the exclusion of sexual orientation from the original version of the Human Rights Bill.

An amended version of the bill, which includes sexual orientation, has been passed by the Illinois House of Representatives and is currently being considered by the state Senate.

Rick Garcia, director of the IFHR, said the amendment to the bill has been held up in the Senate Rules Committee by state Sen. James "Pate" Philip, R-Elmhurst.

"The bill is held up in the Rules Committee because of Senator Philip," Garcia said. "Phillip has had a long reputation to being insensitive to all minorities."

"Phillip seems to wear the name biggot as a symbol of pride and honor,"

Garcia added. "Phillip is the premier biggot in the General Assembly."

Garcia also complemented the efforts of the LGBAU in getting local support for the bill.

"The LGBAU has been very helpful in our efforts," Garcia said. "There is no compelling reason why this bill won't pass, and I am very confident it will pass very soon."

The LGBAU is currently campaigning with the IFHR to persuade three state senators to approve the amendment, despite the fact they voted against the amendment when it was originally proposed in 1993.

State Sen. Stanley Weaver, R-Urbana, Sen. Walter Dudycz, R-Chicago, and Sen. Doris Karpeil, R-Roselle, originally voted against the sexual orientation amendment last year, which caused the amendment to fail by one vote.

"We are currently writing letters to these senators to try to get them to either vote 'yes' or abstain," Sean Williams, publicity director for the LGBAU, said. "We are planning to hold a news conference to inform people about the bill and answer questions about why the bill is being stalled."

Tennis team changes plans

By ANTHONY NASELLA
Staff writer

As if all the recent canceled matches due to inclement weather hasn't been enough for the Eastern men's tennis team, coach John Bennett got word of more changed plans for this weekend's matches.

The Panthers were scheduled to travel to Indianapolis to play against Wright State on Friday and Butler on Saturday.

But instead, because of cancellations by both schools, Eastern will travel to face Mid-Continent Conference rival Valparaiso Saturday at 9 a.m., with a possibility of an afternoon contest against Western Illinois.

"Wright State suffered a couple injuries to one or two of their top players, which leaves them with only five players," Bennett said. "So they had to pull out of the weekend contest. And they also had to cancel against Valparaiso, which opened up the opportunity to play them."

"So this weekend is all changed around."

Meanwhile, the cause of the cancellation against Butler, according to Bennett, was because it had to shift a match on Saturday against a conference opponent to later in the afternoon, causing a time conflict with its match against Eastern.

As for the Leathernecks, Eastern has played them once this season, suffering a close 5-4 defeat that broke a Panther four-game winning streak at the time.

"Western only has a 9 a.m. contest with Youngstown State, so hopefully they will stick around and play us," Bennett said. I think there's a good chance we'll be able to play them.

"We just want to get in some matches," Bennett added. "Another rain out at this point would be tough, so all we can hope for is good weather."

Golfers have busy weekend

By TIM BROZENEC
Staff writer

For the Eastern men's golf team, social plans have been put on hold, since it will be competing in two invitational tournaments this weekend.

Eastern, looking for more consistency, will tee off the Western Illinois Invitational tournament Friday morning at 8:30, which will continue through Saturday at Gibson Woods Golf Course in Monmouth.

And as if the golfers won't be tired enough after Saturday, on Sunday Eastern will compete in the Millikin Invitational at the Eagle Creek Golf Course near the Decatur school.

Enter golf coach Paul Lueken, who is concerned about the lack of practice time due to the "Midwest weather."

"We haven't been able to practice any the last couple of days. Yesterday (Tuesday) it rained all day and today it's snowing," Lueken said, adding that the uncharacteristic cold

April weather is "disappointing."

But Lueken knows that all of the golfers in the tournament have to play in the same conditions, and Eastern could sneak a victory if they can get back in the groove with a strong team effort.

The format of both tournaments is to play five golfers and count only the top four scores on each 18.

At the Western Invite, Eastern will have to play 36 holes on Friday, and 18 more on Saturday. Tee time Saturday will be at 9:00 a.m.

Golfers who will make the Western trip include Jamie Reid, who missed the first tournament, John Armstrong, and Jeff Schuette.

Lueken says the regular season is a good tune-up to the team's ultimate goal, to fare well in the conference tournament in May, but feels this team does have standout quality.

"The biggest part of golf is mental attitude," he said. "I've noticed that our guys have shown good attitudes" this spring.

Baseball

Middle infielder Tony Grillo, Eastern's lead-off hitter with a .385 average, is the only other Panther currently hampered by an injury. Grillo's status is listed as day-to-day. He saw only pinch-hitting duty during the Wright State series and should be available for at least that much this weekend.

Grillo suffered a shoulder injury during a rundown in the season-opening Carbondale Tournament, but the coach said he hadn't learned of the injury until two weeks later at the March 26 doubleheader against Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

"He's still not 100 percent, but the trainer says he is showing improvement," said Callahan.

Women's tennis team back in swing

By MATT MORFOOT
Staff writer

Returning to the courts this weekend, the Eastern women's tennis team will see action in a series of matches for the first time since coming back from spring break.

Today, the lady netters will travel to Butler University to make up a rain-out that occurred last Tuesday.

The tennis team then travels to Evansville University where they will take on conference rival Wright State on Saturday morning and Western Kentucky in the afternoon.

Sunday's match versus Evansville will complete Eastern's road trip of four games in three days.

"All these schools have quality tennis programs that are at about the same level as ourselves," head coach John Ross said.

According to Ross, Saturday morning's match against Wright State is the most important of the weekend's matches.

"The better we do in our conference matches the higher the seed we will get in the Mid-Continent Conference tournament," Ross said. "The conference tournament is what our season all comes down to."

Ross believes that as long as his team is ready to play, they will be competitive over the weekend.

"These are all teams that we can beat," Ross said. "If we have good practices before competing this weekend we will do fairly well."

morning, all 18 teams that will be represented will show up, and close to 200 athletes will take to O'Brien Stadium to compete.

"The girls are really looking forward to having a home meet because their families and friends can come out and watch them," Ohl said. "It's always exciting to have a home meet."

Shenoa Fehr and Caylee Anderson provide a lethal one-two punch that is beginning to develop for the Lady Panthers, and will be primed to perform at their peak this weekend.

"I'd like to see our distance runners continue to do well year and we don't have any intention of doing that again this year," Perine said of the doubleheader against Youngstown State.

The Panthers finish the weekend when they travel to Dayton, Ohio for a make-up against Wright State University on Sunday. The games were originally scheduled for Tuesday but were postponed due to snow and rain in the Dayton, Ohio area.

Amy Bradle and Missy Porzel will both share mound time this weekend.

Men's duo leads way in decathlon

By BRIAN HARRIS
Staff writer

While Reebok has Dan and Dave, Eastern has Dan and Daryl.

After the first day, Daryl Brower and Dan Holzer are leading the decathlon convincingly at the EIU Pepsi Invitational.

With five events left to go this morning, Brower, a freshman competing in his first decathlon, has already established a commanding 255-point lead with his Thursday total of 3120.

Partly in the midst of a snow-covered football field and a frozen-over steeplechase pit, Brower won four of the five events, topped by a 6-foot-2 clearance in the high jump, which led the other four competitors by 8 1/4 inches. Holzer, who won the 100-meter dash at 11.9 seconds, currently sits in second at 2865.

"Both of them showed good focus on their event," said head coach Neil Moore. "They competed at near-PRs (personal records) in the first five events. There were no let downs. If we are as fortunate (on the second day), I will be very happy with the results."

The two-day decathlon acts as a lead-in to the rest of the events on Saturday.

Field events will start off Saturday's schedule from 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., when the running events begin. Spectators will be able to obtain a full time schedule at O'Brien Field. The meet is scheduled to run until 8:30 under the lights.

Daryl Brower finishes up the 400-meter dash, edging out Eastern teammate Dan Holzer. Brower and Holzer, the only two Panthers in this weekend's decathlon, are currently first and second in the competition's standings.

Sixteen teams from all over the Midwest are expected, including Indiana State, Lincoln, Wisconsin-Milwaukee and Western Illinois.

Top entrants for Eastern include Obadiah Cooper in the 100 and 200, Nate Shaffer in the 1500, Neal Trentman and Tim Thompson in the high jump and Kert McAfee in the 400.

Cooper, along with teammates Don Rice, Vinram Wade Bey and Ray McElroy, will be shooting for a school record (40.49) in the 4x100 relay.

The meet will be the Panthers' only home competition of the season. Assistant coach John McInerney said Eastern has 50 entrants vying for the travel squad, which consists of 30 individuals.

"This being our only home meet is a big deal," said McInerney. "Hopefully, our guys are excited about that. The guys who didn't go down to Alabama (Relays) are trying to establish themselves on the travel squad. So there's quite a bit at stake."

Women's team ready for Saturday

By JOHN COX

After one day of competition in the women's heptathlon in the EIU Pepsi Invitational, Stephanie Smith of Southern Illinois leads the field.

The closest Lady Panther, Nowhere to be found, Kala Scott, last year's best heptathlete, didn't compete in this year's opening event for the Pepsi Invitational.

"It takes a lot out of her," assistant coach Mary O'Hara said. "Right now, she's our only long jumper and our only triple jumper. We would rather save her for those events on Saturday rather than wear her out completely on Thursday and Friday and expect her to come back and do the jumping and the hurdles and the relay."

"Her ankle has been giving her problems lately too, so we figured that there are only four meets left, so it's best not to push it and take a chance on injuring her," O'Hara said.

Yesterday featured the 200-meter dash, which was won by Western Illinois' Marlo Mozur, the shot put and the high jump, which were both won by Smith, and the 100-meter hurdles, which were won by Gretchen Smith of Indiana State University.

The remaining events, the 800-meter dash, the discus and the 100-meter dash, will start tomorrow morning at 10 a.m.

And finally, on Saturday

Baseball squad goes north for three-game weekend set

By ROBERT MANKER
Sports editor

The Eastern baseball team will attempt to play its first games since Sunday when it travels north for a weekend Mid-Continent Conference series with Illinois-Chicago.

The Panthers, rained out of a Tuesday home game with Purdue and a Wednesday road game at Southern Illinois-Carbondale, are scheduled to play a 1 p.m. doubleheader Saturday and a single game at noon Sunday.

Eastern head coach Dan Callahan said Thursday afternoon that if UIC's field becomes unplayable, the games could possibly be moved to Eastern's Monier Field.

"I talked to the (UIC) assistant coach (Thursday) because I was trying to find out what kind of weather they were going to have up there," Callahan said. "(The games) could possibly be moved here if need be."

Warming temperatures and clear skies are forecast for Charleston this weekend.

Senior righthanders Basil Clausen and Mike Fahey are slated to pitch Saturday's games, but Callahan said he had not yet determined who would start which game.

Clausen, No. 1 in the Panthers' rotation, last pitched April 2 in the Panthers' 2-1 loss to Wright State in the first game of a doubleheader.

Fahey has pitched only once since returning from a 10-game suspension, imposed because of a team curfew violation during the team's spring trip to New Orleans. Fahey pitched in the second game of the April 2 doubleheader.

Senior lefthander Andy Keefner, the winner in an 8-7 win over Wright State April 3, is the scheduled starter for Sunday's game.

Clausen is 1-3 with a 5.18 earned run average, Fahey 1-2 with a 2.21 ERA and Keefner 2-4 with a 3.75 ERA.

Callahan said starting catcher Shawn Guenther, who broke his glove hand in the April 2 doubleheader, is still not healthy. Guenther is currently the Panthers' second-leading hitter with a .342 batting average.

"Guenther's still out for another week-and-a-half or two weeks," Callahan said.

Lady Panthers set for conference play

By PAUL DEMPSEY
Staff writer

The Eastern softball team opens conference play this weekend with a full slate of doubleheaders that begin today at Lantz Field at 3 p.m.

The Panthers (10-9) are coming off a third-place finish at the inaugural Spring Classic last weekend at Lantz Field.

The Panthers face Cleveland State University at 3 p.m. today.

The Vikings enter the doubleheader with a 3-17 record and an 0-1 Mid-Continent Conference mark.

"Cleveland State has played a pretty tough schedule," Eastern head coach Beth Perine said. "They went to Hawaii and played a lot of top 20 teams."

"They're struggling right now. They've had a hard time early on but they picked it up a little since then."

Although their record is not very good, they are still a young and aggressive team, according to Perine.

On Saturday Eastern faces Youngstown State in a doubleheader that begins at noon.

The Lady Penguins are currently 1-0 in conference play and hold a 7-7 record overall.

The 70s gave us disco.
The 80s gave us break-dancing. As we near the 21st century a new line of stepping to the beat has swept across many communities in America.

Step aside city slickers and tenderfeet, because country line dancing is the new dance craze.

Much of the success of line dancing can be credited to country mega-stars such as Garth Brooks, Randy Travis and Billy Ray Cyrus. Even television networks such as TNN, the country version of MTV, has gotten into the act by airing line dancing shin-digs regularly.

Charleston residents are also lining up to dance the night away.

Within the last year, various area organizations have jumped on the country bandwagon to provide area residents and students with a chance to learn or build upon their line dancing skills. Lessons or country gatherings that allow participants to kick up their heels are becoming as popular a karaoke.

Don Yost, owner of Stix, Restaurant, Bar and Banquet Facility, has incorporated a country theme on Tuesday nights. Also, the Charleston Recreation Department offers country line dancing lessons on Tuesday nights in the Stix Banquet Room.

"It's all-American, good, clean fun for people 21 to 71 years of age," Yost said.

Even underage students can get a chance to join in the line dancing phenomena.

'Schindler's' missed in Charleston area

By DAVID M. PUTNEY

Some critics are already calling Schindler's List the movie of the decade.

The film recently won two major academy awards, a golden globe and nearly universal critical acclaim.

Consider the praise heaped on it: This week, a juvenile court judge in Kalamazoo, Mich., sentenced a 16-year-old-boy to see Schindler's List to teach him "It isn't enough to know not to do the wrong thing, but you have to know enough to take action to stop the wrong thing."

Despite such glowing statements, Charleston residents are probably all asking the same question about Steven Spielberg's magnum opus.

Will it ever be shown in a local theater?

"Maybe" is the best answer local theatre owners can give right now, and that is unfortunate. Rachel Hasenyager, advertising director for GKC Theaters, the company that owns the Will Rogers Theater in Charleston and the Time Theater and the Cinema Three in Mattoon said the company would like to bring the film to town, but it simply doesn't have a print available.

A large part of the problem is the immense acclaim and popularity the film has generated, she said. Universal, the distributor of the film, didn't plan for a huge hit, which Schindler's List clearly has become.

"They really went out on a limb with this film," Hasenyager said. "The question is whether the public will support the film. Given the controversial subject of the film they didn't with a wide distribution."

In addition, Universal picked the locations that the prints would be shown, so theaters in larger cities like Springfield, Champaign, Peoria and Chicago got the few prints that exist. Hasenyager said. Such a practice is common she said.

Since Charleston and Mattoon weren't on the initial list of sites for the film to play, residents must wait for the film to close in another city and free up a print for the local area.

"The film is a really good film and is still well attended," she said. "The problem is it's too popular."

It has made $74 million in the 16 weeks since it was released. Last week, it was the fifth largest money making film in the country. Winning two academy awards hasn't hurt the film either.

"This film is unlike a lot of others," Hasenyager said. "They win an award and then attendance goes up for a little while. This film isn't dropping off. It's gaining."

In retrospect, Universal's assumption that a three-hour black and white film about the Holocaust wouldn't catch people's attention was a gross underestimation of the the drawing power of Steven Spielberg.

"E.T.," the Indiana Jones trilogy, "Jaws," and "Jurassic Park" are all huge successes, but critics rarely view them as serious movies. However, say that is to ignore "The Color Purple," an earlier Spielberg film snubbed by the academy at Oscar time, it is an unarguable critical and popular success.

"Schindler's List" is a must-see film in the truest sense of the term. In this case, a drive to Champaign to see it in the big screen might be in order.

Students use art as a vehicle of self-expression at the 1994 Graduate Art Exhibit

NATALIE GOTT

Hong Gao paints as a means of escaping loneliness. Gao, an exchange student from China who is planning to receive her master's degree in art, said living in the United States gets lonely at times. Painting provides her with a social outlet.

"When I feel alone, I feel like I can talk to my paintings," he said. "You forget about everything."

Gao's artwork, along with the work of 10 other art graduate students, will be on display at the Tarble Arts Center until May 1.

Gao said she painted mainly landscapes and still life when she lived in China. Since she has been at Eastern, Gao said she has learned many contemporary techniques, such as the drip and splatter techniques.

"I was lucky to get an opportunity to come to EIU," Rao said. "It gave me a chance to explore the contemporary arts. It has allowed me to combine Eastern and Western tactics."

Gao uses her newfound techniques to illustrate her loneliness in her painting “Homesick.”

“Homesick,” a still-life portrait of a woman, utilizes traditional techniques as well a contemporary drip method.

Gao attributes the strides she has made in her artwork to her Eastern art professors.

"The teachers here are different (than teachers in China)," Gao said. "If you have a problem, the teacher will point it out directly. They will ask you to do that or this. Here it is different. (Eastern professors) let you use your own ideas and use your best ideas."

Gao plans to receive her master's in fine arts while studying in the United States, but will then return to China.

Other graduate artwork on display at the Tarble Art Center include: Clay Avey, Lisa Grotenfendt, Donna Coleman, C. Scott Lindley, Jonathan Joel Ricci, Anne Hughes, Mel Indelicato, Rich Humphrey, Brenda Stultz and Mark Toma.

Toma sculpted human figures out of wood and then painted the same human figures in monoprints.

In a statement about his work, Toma said: "My work deals with the abstract of the human form. They originate from past emotions. They reflect emotion, human tendencies toward self destruction."

Ricci, another graduate student whose works are on display at Tarble, found inspiration to paint from his own experiences.

"In my work I search for my identity, my past and my experience. I try to record my memories, good or bad, on canvas," Ricci said in a statement at the display.

His works "Fraternity Boys are Big Men on Campus" and "He said He was 18," are pieces of art that could spark controversy.

"My work is not begging for acceptance or approval. I don't need acceptance to survive, just an endless supply of paint and canvas," Ricci said.

Theater majors step into spotlight with production debuts

DAVID M. PUTNEY

Opening night would seem like a rare experience for any first-time direc-

Not so for two Eastern theater majors who are about to premiere their first productions.

"I'm not at all nervous," said S. Laurence, director of "Sexual Perversity in Chicago," a one act play that opens Sunday. "I'm really happy with the way rehearsals are going so far. Everybody is ready."

Also sharing Cope's confidence is Fritz Lang, a director about to stage his first play, "A Slight Ache." Both one-act plays will open at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Play Room in Dvorak Fine Arts Building. "Sexual Perversity" will premiere first, immediately followed by "A Slight Ache."

Staging seemingly diverse plays one after the other poses several problems, both technical and thematically. Both use the same sets, which might stretch the audience's imagination because one play is set in modern-day Chicago while the other is set in a country house in England.

"Although the flats in the back are the same, the set dressings are completely different," Cope said. "Audiences accept that kind of thing in theater much easi-

"Sexual perversity in Chicago," a comedy by David Mamet, deals with sexual relationships and friendships. It was made into the movie "About Last Night" in 1986. It was directed by Edward Zwick and starred Rob Lowe, Demi Moore, Jim Belushi and Elizabeth Perkins.

D. Pat Swearington, Jennifer Givens, Katie Slavinsky and Matt

"I haven't seen the movie yet," Cope said. "Maybe at the cast party we'll sit down and watch it."

Court TV fever plagues college campuses

By ELIZABETH RAICHLE

Legal journalist Steven Briel was struck with a vision in a New York taxicab. While traveling crosstown in New York City, he foresaw a new and innovative cable service that would bring the courtroom into America's living room — and university dorm rooms.

Four years later, Briel's brainchild — Court TV — is one of the most watched cable services in the world, and it has become a particular favorite to some college students.

Court TV fever can be seen on campuses everywhere, and even at Eastern a "Free Erik and Lyle/Court TV" sign can be seen hanging in an Andrews Hall window.

"I used to watch it when I went over to my friend's room and they were crazy over Erik and Lyle," said home economics major Amber Angel. "Their walls were plastered with their pictures and news clippings. I just think that it's fun to watch because the people on there are more ridiculous than actors on a soap."

The Menendez brothers were arrested in October of 1989 for the murder of their parents, Jose and Kitty Menendez. Both Erik and Lyle testified they shot their parents 19 times with a shotgun because they were the victims of years of sexual abuse. Both cases were declared a mistrial.

Since its debut in July 1991, Court TV's live coverage of the American judicial system has consistently been one of top one or two cable channels being watched, said Court TV spokeswoman Debbie Wilson. In its short time on the air, Court TV has carried such sensational trials as the rape trial of William Kennedy Smith, the trials for John Wayne and Lorenea Bobbit and all trials stemming from the Rodney King beating case.

"People who watch Court TV tend to be devoted viewers, and many say they are even addicts," Wilson said. "That is because the nature of the programming is live, and whenever it is such, you cannot anticipate what's going to happen."

Steve Chapman, an English major at UCLA, considers himself to be a Court TV addict and says he follows it "religiously."

"I got hooked when the whole Erik and Lyle trial came on because Erik was supposed to go to UCLA," Chapman said.

Yet with the popularity and media interest surrounding the Erik and Lyle Menendez trial, Court TV's regular viewing audience escalated to almost cult-following status.

"My friends and I spend hours in each other's rooms watching Court TV. Trials like the Bobbit trial and the William Kennedy Smith trial are fascinating to watch ... you feel like you know everything about them," said Princeton speech communication major Marybeth Taylor.

Court TV reporter Terry Moran also noticed the station's attraction while covering the Menendez trial.

"There were people who came from the East Coast who would show up at the courthouse (in Van Nuys, Calif.) to check out the trial," Moran said. "There were also regulars who would drive from San Francisco every day just to be a part of the audience."

Dancing

Hall. Balding said he came up with the idea of teaching line dancing after several trips to Stix where he participates regularly.

"It is really quite enjoyable, and line dancing also is a great workout," Balding said.

Balding said his seven to 12 students' skills range from not knowing a single dance step to knowing a few dances learned at local or hometown clubs.

Dancers at Stix cited various reasons for getting involved in this latest dance craze.

Mary Morton, a Charleston resident who has been dancing for about a year, said she participates because "it's different."

"I taught Jazzercise for 14 years, and now I've come to enjoy line dancing because it is fun, different and a great low impact workout," Morton said.

Morton also teaches line dancing at the West Park Plaza in Charleston.

Julie Lannon, who teaches dancing at Stix on Tuesday nights along with Barb Elliot, said she does it out of pure enjoyment.

"There are a whole lot more Eastern students participating than I ever imagined," Lannon said.

Charlie Brokaw, a line dancing critique, said he compares line dancing to "disco to a Western song."

Yost admitted that he was also skeptical of line dancing when his wife, Louise, first suggested it as a weekly activity at Stix.

"If it's not broke don't fix it," was Yost's original reply to Louise. However, she pointed out: "I'm not going to fix it. I'll just make it better."

Yost attempted to stimulate the line dancing idea last Tuesday night by providing Stix's first-ever live band, the Sawyer Brothers.

Anyone interested in line dancing lessons or outings can contact Don Yost at Stix or the Charleston Recreational Department at 345-6897. Students interested in the free lessons provided at Stevenson Hall by Larry Balding can reach him at 581-3860.
